A Retelling of Ancient Forms of Biblical Storytelling
Sunday the 27th April at the Jordan Centre. 7pm to 8:15pm

Carl is doing his Doctoral studies at the moment with a focus on the early church teaching model called 'Mystagogical Preaching' (a learning journey into the mysteries of Christ).

It was a story-formed process that prepared new Christians for their baptism and first communion. This night will be an experiment in modernising this approach while exploring the images of bread and water throughout the whole biblical narrative and how they relate to our baptism and practice of communion.

It will be quite a creative and visual night with Carl weaving all kinds of stories together from the bible. It's going to be great! And it's free 😊

Our Big Community Clean Up!

It all started with thinking about our world, God's beautiful creation, and that he asked us to look after it. It then developed into an event for our church community. We registered with the council and gathered gloves, buckets, rubbish bags and pick up sacks at the environmental hub. The sun was shining, and there was plenty of rubbish for our 16 church family and friends to collect – 60kg to be exact. We finished with an afternoon tea, celebrating the fact that we made a small part of our town clean and free of litter. But, best of all, we had restored a small part of God's creation. I want to thank my friends - Marg, Vaughan, Zeke, Mitch, Dan, Enzo, Joanna, Logan, Nonna, Justin, Mariska, Nigel, James, Leah and Taylor for turning up and making this event successful.

As arranged, I took the 60kg of litter we collected to the dump on Sunday morning free of charge.

Look out for our next Community Clean Up I will be running in spring this year. I pray for more family and friends to join in next time as it would be great to cover an even bigger area of our city.
